

hosted by

Institute for Child and Youth Studies

Discussions a c r o s s Disciplines

presents a conversation about

Coding

What do we do when we code? And what does coding mean across disciplines? What are the challenges and affordances of coding as an analytical process? Join us for an informal discussion with an anthropologist, a feminist legal scholar, and an evolutionary behaviourist to consider these questions.

Panelists: Dr. Jan Newberry (Anthropology), Dr. Caroline Hodes (WGST), and PhD Candidate Jonathan Jarrett (Evolution & Behaviour).

Friday, October 6, 2017

12:00-1:00pm

D630

“Discussions Across Disciplines” brings together an interdisciplinary group of students, faculty, and academic staff to discuss current topics that span various academic fields.
Everyone welcome!